In the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit, Amen.
 We begin with the Gospel of Luke, chapter 10, verses 1-17.
 At that time Jesus appointed seventy-two others to be sent with him into every town and village he was about to visit. He said to them, "The harvest is plentiful, but the laborers are few. Therefore pray to the Lord to send more laborers into his harvest." He then sent them out two by two, and he said to them, "Do not take any gold or silver or sandals with you, but take your staffs. Do not wear sandals, but go in simple sandals. Do not take any extra clothes with you. Do not eat or drink with anyone on the way. Do not go into a house to eat or drink. Do not go to a town or village unless you have been invited. When you go into a town or village, say to the people, 'Peace be to you.' If you are welcomed, eat and drink. If you are not welcomed, shake the dust from your feet as a witness against them. For I tell you, you will be more effective in this way than the prophets." So he sent them out, and they went away.

In the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit, Amen.
 We begin with the Gospel of Luke, chapter 10, verses 18-24.
 Jesus said to his disciples, "I was watching Satan fall from heaven like lightning. For I have given you authority to tread on snakes and scorpions, and to trample underfoot all the power of the enemy, and you will not be harmed. Nevertheless, do not rejoice in this, for your joy should be in the fact that your names are written in heaven." Then he said to them, "Whoever wishes to be first among you must be last of all and servant of all." He then took a child and put him in the middle of them, and he said to them, "Whoever wishes to be first among you must be last of all and servant of all." Then he said to them, "Whoever wishes to be first among you must be last of all and servant of all."

 by [Name]

This dissertation is a study of the role of Mary Magdalene and the women disciples in the Gospel of Luke. It explores the historical and literary context of these figures and their significance in the early Christian community. The study is based on a close reading of the text and an understanding of the cultural and social norms of the time.

I would like to thank my advisor, [Name], for his guidance and support throughout this project. I also thank my friends and family for their encouragement and assistance.
